

Our Vision

Bunge is dedicated to protecting the health and well-being of consumers by delivering safe and high-quality products to our customers around the globe.

Our Commitment

As a leader in the global food production chain, we work to continuously improve our integrated operations to create the highest possible level of quality, food and feed safety.

Our Principles

- We ensure that our performance meets or exceeds global certifications schemes and agreements, as well as regulatory requirements and product certification standards.
- We follow all elements of the Quality and Food Safety Management System that incorporates standardized policies to ensure the production of safe and quality food.
- We develop upon and support a food safety culture where employees are engaged and held accountable for their quality and food safety responsibilities.
- We maintain key performance indicator metrics to identify opportunities for continuous improvement.
- Our organization is structured so that there is no conflict of interest between the production of safe and quality food products and operational requirements.
- We continually build our team's skills through training and personal development and ensure all employees understand their role in producing safe and quality food.
- Our suppliers are aware of and adhere to our high standards for quality and food safety.

A handwritten signature in blue ink, appearing to read "Greg Heckman", is written over a thin horizontal line.

Greg Heckman
Chief Executive Officer

Bunge